A Flower Named For Sarah

Sarah Armellini, co-founder of Armellini Express Lines, was recently recognized by the floriculture industry by having a flower named in her honor at the International Floriculture Exposition (IFE) held from September 16-18, 2021 in Miami.

Flower naming events are a venerated tradition in Europe, where queens and heads of state have been honored with flowers named after them in a formal ceremony. This ceremony honors floral industry pioneers who have made a significant impact over the course of their career, going above and beyond a normal job or a routine business. Honorees are chosen by a panel of fellow industry leaders and Ms. Armellini is only the twelfth person in the United States to be recognized by the IFE with this award.

The award was presented by Cindy Hanauer of Grand Central Floral, a 2012 recipient of the same award. Hanauer said, "What Sarah and her husband, Jules started wasn't simply "an idea".... it was the execution of an idea that still provides important solutions to the industry today. Over the past 75+ years, the name Armellini has become synonymous with the fluidity of our industry and the real-time solutions that are required as the industry evolves. The name Armellini stands for giving back, being there in a clutch and striving for creative solutions-even in the most difficult times."

The named Chrysanthemum is a beautiful white and purple bicolor resembling paintbrushes through the petals and is awarded the name and trade designation "Sarah's Brush". Throughout her life, Ms. Armellini was also an avid painter, and this one-of-a-kind flower exemplifies her artistry.

Unfortunately, the world lost Mrs. Armellini on July 4, 2021, but the business that she and her husband, Jules, began in 1945 continues today and her family was present to accept this award on her behalf.

Chamber members enjoyed a beautiful autumn evening, complete with entertainment and delicious hors'd oeuvres, at the October Business After Hours, sponsored and hosted by DreamWorks Companies. Owners Gary and Kelly Guttveg, shown with Chamber President/CEO Joe Catrambone, welcomed members to their Palm City showroom, as they presented their turn-key construction businesses.
